DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in-

(1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effect under this subsection of a national application published under section 122(b) only if the international application designating the United States was published under Article 21(2)(a) of such treaty in the English language; or

(2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that a patent shall not be deemed filed in the United States for the purposes of this subsection based on the filing of an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a).

2. Claims 1-5 and 8-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Sakaguchi et al. (U.S. 6,313,014).

In reference to claims 1-5 and 12-13, Sakaguchi et al. (Fig.1-5) in a related method to form buried oxide films teach placing the substrate (23) into a vacuum chamber; evacuating the vacuum chamber to a first pressure; introducing hydrogen into the vacuum chamber, said hydrogen is a surface inhibiting agent; and implanting ions into the substrate (23) to form a buried oxide layer under a top silicon layer (22), where the fluid inhibits formations of threading dislocations in the top silicon layer (22) for reducing a defect density of the processed substrate; measuring a decrease in the ion beam current level due to the fluid on the chamber; adjusting the fluid level based upon the measured ion beam current; and selecting the fluid from fluids that inhibit formations of threading dislocations in the top silicon layer (22) for reducing a defect density of the processed substrate (23) (column 2, line 53 – column 16, line 25).

In reference to claims 8-11, Sakaguchi et al. teach controlling the amount of fluid introduced into the vacuum chamber based upon a parameter measured in the chamber, said parameter consisting from the group consisting of ion concentration and temperature; where the parameter further comprises a measurement of an ion beam current comprising a decrease in the beam current due to fluid in the chamber (column 2, line 53 – column 16, line 25).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 6-7 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Sakaguchi et al. ('014).

In reference to claims 6 and 7, Sakaguchi et al. substantially teach all aspects of the invention but fail to teach the first pressure is less than about 1×10^{-5} Torr and a second pressure less than about 1×10^{-3} .

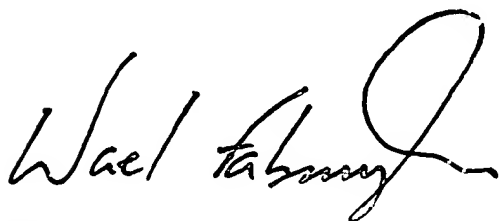

The selection of the claimed ranges is obvious because it is a matter of determining optimum process condition by routine experimentation with a limited number of species. In re Jones, 162 USPQ 224 (CCPA 1955)(the selection of optimum ranges within prior art general conditions is obvious) and In re Boesch, 205 USPQ 215 (CCPA 1980)(discovery of optimum value of result effective variable in a known process is obvious).
